GLANDERS.

To the Editor of The Progress.

Sir,—From the public spirit the

QU'APPELLE PROGRESS has always shown and from the deep interest it has invariably taken in all that affects the welfare of this country,

I am encouraged to address you upon a subject which is daily growing in importance, not only to the farming community at large, but to every owner of a horse throughout the Territories. I refer to glanders—an incurable contagious disease to which the horse is subject, and which is not only liable to be transmitted to several other domestic animals, but to man himself. A horse suffering from acute glanders is a most pitiable and disgusting object, but when it attacks the human being the result is almost too horrible to contemplate; and there is reason to fear that this disease has gained such a foothold here in the west as to be steadily on the increase. I have read somewhere that "to him who waits all things come," and I have been waiting patiently to hear of some reasonable steps taken by our legislators at Regina to stamp out, or at all events to control the ravages of the malady. You may perhaps be aware that several spasmodic efforts were made in the past with a view to its extinction; but there it appears to have ended. Surely the united wisdom of our North-West Assembly is sufficient to evolve some practical method of properly handling the matter. I believe that a Government Veterinary Surgeon was appointed some time ago at Regina. If so, it is, I admit, a step in the right direction, but what power is given him to deal with the disease? Is he required to go through the country periodically and inspect all horses, or has he to wait till a case of supposed glanders is reported to him by the owner of the horse or some other interested person, and then get instructions from some one before making an examination? Has he power to

Supreme Court.

The Spring sitting of the Supreme Court for the Judicial District of Western Assn. India was held on Friday last before His Honor

Judge Richardson, who was attended by Mr. Dixie Watson, Clerk of the Court, and Mr. Sheriff Hanson.

The following was the list of cases set down for hearing:—

1. Criminal case: The Queen vs.

Hugh McMillan.

2. Bulyea vs. C.P.R. Adjudged to

Chambers.

3. Traders Bank vs. Brookes.
